It's Summer Time! Let's Go Outside and Play!

- Movement helps young children grow physically strong and healthy, build self-confidence, and develop good thinking and problem-solving skills by exploring and interacting with their world.
- Take your child to the playground and on walks around the neighborhood. Talk about anything you see. Your child will love discussing things like cars, buses, buildings, plants, and trees with you!
- Let your child play outside with water. Fill a bucket with water and give your child some plastic toys, rocks, or containers for filling and dumping the water. Your child will love exploring how different objects sink or float in the water and they can fill a container with water and then dump it out!

Open-ended question: Tell me about what you saw on our walk today.
